Liz McNicholl, a popular face -- and voice -- on the Greater New York Irish and folk circuit, will debut her new CD, "Grand Central Station," at a CD release party at Rosie O'Grady's Broadway Room in Manhattan on Saturday, April 6. The public is invited. The album was produced by Gabriel Donohue and features performances by Joannie Madden (Cherish The Ladies), Eamonn O'Rourke and Steve Holley, as well as Gabriel. The CD includes a much-anticipated recording of Tom Paxton's "The Bravest," dedicated to the heroes of September 11. It describes the bravery of the firefighters who climbed the stairs of the World Trade twin towers.
